The Warrior's Life

By de Vigny, Alfred.

Penguin. 1 Paperback(s), 2013. soft. Book Condition: New. At the end of the Napoleonic Wars, a generation of French soldiers were haunted by defeat, among them the young poet Alfred de Vigny (1797-1863), an aristocrat dispossessed by the Revolution. Noted as one of the leading lights of French Romanticism, Vigny was best known for this 1835 memoir, which combines enigmatic reflections, biographical anecdotes, and philosophical meditations on the nature of war and the life of the soldier. Roger Gard provides footnotes as well as an introduction that situates the book in the context of this turbulent era in European history. "[This is] an immortal depiction gripping and vivid yet unsparingly unsentimental of a generation forced to question as never before the place of war and the military values in modern life." Mark Mazower 199.
