Many separations with stationary electrodes have been made with low currents, but with the rotating anode, high currents of from three to five amperes have been employed. The largest contribution to the subject of metal separations, using the rotating anode, was made by Ashbrook in 1904 (Journal of the American Chemical Society, 26, 1285). All his work was done with high currents, five amperes being generally used. A few separations were later recorded by Miss Langness (Thesis, 1906), in which low currents and rotation were successful. Silver was separated from copper, nickel, platinum or zinc, using the cyanide electrolyte, the current ranging from 0.25 to 0.4 amperes. The analysis of a coin. as performed...

Reviews

Extensive information! Its this type of excellent study. I have read and i am sure that i will gonna go through yet again once more down the road. Once you begin to read the book, it is extremely difficult to leave it before concluding.
